DOMINIONS UNITED AGAINST SIGNING STRAITS COMPACT

Lausanne Treaty Has Dismal Prospect as It Comes Up Before the British Parliament

Proposal Made That Sanctuary Be Provided for Armenians Who use. Are Victims of Allied Policy

By CRAWFURD PRICE By Cable from Monitor Bureau

LONDON, April 1-When the Treaty of Lausanne comes up for ratification in the House of Commons today it is likely to be subjected to a sharp attack from the Labor and Liberal benches. That this peace represents anything save an act of capitulation on the part of the great powers is scarcely open to discussion, even Marquess Curzon's apologia for his own handiwork being an unconvincing affair. The only excuse for it was that it was the best obtainable under the circumstances of allied disunity. It is naturally impossible to throw the entire settlement into the melting pot at this juncture, but opposition to some provisions will certainly be ef-fectively voiced. As was pointed out at the time, the chief surrender at Lausanne was on two main counts, namely, failure to secure effective in ternational control of the Straits and ternational control of the Straits and to safeguard the interests of the Christian populations. The much belauded Straits convention is a thinly veiled danger instead of a security for peace. Demilitarized zones were established, but only in return for an agreement obliging Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan to guarantee military secur-ity to Turkish territory. This Mar-quess Curzon informed the Turks was absolute assurance for their future

Russia's Ambitions

At that period diplomacy chose to discount any possibility of a revival of Russian ambitions in the direction of the Golden Horn, although that was one of the chief arguments in favor of the original project for internationalization embodied in the Treaty of Sevres. Today the influence of Tzarist imperialism or the assumed requirements of national development upon Soviet foreign policy are becom-ing clearer. In short, it is being real-ized that the Straits' convention may eventually entail a defense of Turkish soil against Russian aggression. Parliamentary criticism may not be couched in the plain language used above. Most probably it will merely oppose British acceptance of obligations on the ground that they are in-compatible with British interests. But the inference is clear. On the other and, Admiralty circles object to the limitation of naval forces that may be sent to the Black Sea and there is a tendency in favor of following American policy in this respect. Furthermore, the British Dominions are opposed as a whole to the policy embodied in the convention.

Christian Minorities

The Turks have been busy in dis-nosing of the question of Christian minorities in their own effective fashion ever since the treaty was signed. In this connection the Allies distinctly tempting to provide them with a na-tional home the Angora Government has recently proposed to proclaim a great forbidden zone consisting of the belt of territory bordered eastward by Armenian must set foot herein.

testing against gross infractions of this all cases on their own initiative. description, for their representatives are unable to obtain satisfaction in minor matters as the legal rights of their nationals, the closing of schools and institutions, and other innumerable vexatious proceedings. The only thing that can be done is to provide elsewhere some sanctuary for the victims of the failure of allied policy.

OREGON TO APPEAL SECT-SCHOOLS BAN

Enjoined State Officials to Take Constitutionality Issue to Supreme Bench

PORTLAND, Ore., April 1 (Special)

Appeal to the United States Supreme Court will be taken from the decision handed down here yesterday holding the Oregon compulsory public school attendance law unconstitutional and from Basel to Noyers-sur-Cher, for in enjoining State officers from enforcthe original plan it was hoped to coming it. ing it.

The announcement was made a Salem by Gov. Walter M. Pierce, one of the officers enjoined. It was the opinion of attorneys with whom the Governor had consulted that the case need not go by way of the Federal Court of Appeals but could be taken to the Supreme Court direct.
In the State of Washington a sim ilar measure to the one declared unconstitutional in Oregon is being pre-pared for submission to the voters at the November election. Advices re-ceived here following Monday's deci-eral Court for the interests upholding the law, said he was not prepared to say what the next move would be.

PORTLAND, Ore., April 1 (AP)-Circuit Judge William B. Gilbert, with District Judges C. E. Wolverton and R. S. Bean, rendered the decision declaring the law unconstitutional. The opinion of the three judges defended the right of private schools to exist in the State, holding that "their privilege to teach grammar grades must be regarded as natural and in-herent."

"The act could not be more effective for utterly destroying the business and occupation of the complainants' schools, except perhaps the colleges and preparatory grades, if it had been entitled 'an act to prevent parochial and private schools from teaching the grammar grades," the opinion holds,

adding:

This serves to emphasize the seriousness of the controversy. Indeed the simile is no stronger than the argument for the adoption of the measure, which put it:

"A divided school can no more succeed than a divided nation." That such is the purpose of the act is obvious and incontrovertible.

It cannot be successfully combated that parochial and private schools have existed aimost from time immemorial—so long, at least, that their privilege and right to teach grammar grades must be regarded as that their privilege and right to teach grammar grades must be regarded as natural and inherent, as much so as the privilege and right of a tutor to teach the German language in the grammar grades, as was held in Meyer vs. Nebraska supra.

The right of the State to establish as its school policy compulsory education within its boundaries is conceded. Practically all the states in the Union have adopted such a policy. But no state has ventured so far as to eliminate parochial and private schools from participating in the promotion of the policy.

The Oregon school law events of the State," said Dr. Smith, "to see that children would require children of that age to attend public schools. But I think it is the business of the State to make private schools equal to public schools. I think, however, that it is going too far to say that children must attend public schools. Such a law is too arbitrary."

Dr. Smith pointed out that the law of Massachusetts requires children to continue at school until 14, either at a public school, or at some other day school approved by the school com-mittee of the city or town, and then only when instruction is in English, and equal in thoroughness, efficiency, and progress, to that of the public school in any particular city or town. Moratorium for Three Years-600,000,000 Gold Marks to Be Paid Annually

By SISLEY HUDDLESTON By Special Cable

PARIS, April 1-The Committee of Experts whose report is nearly ready will not endeavor to fix any figure, new or old, of Germany's total debt. Its view is that it is not entitled to deal with this essential point. Ger-many has thus the opportunity of protesting that it cannot make any financial arrangement while this state of uncertainty persists. The experts, how-ever, have devoted themselves to the practical consideration of how much Germany can pay annually. Three Years' Moratorium

The new agreement to make the noratorium three years represents a concession by the French, who held concession by the French, who held out for two years. But during the moratorium certain payments are pos-sible for the upkeep of armies and de-liveries in kind. The figure provision-ally put is 600,000,000 gold marks annually. If a large loan is possible on the world's markets, then a portion, it is held, should be devoted to reparations. There is no reason why a loan is impossible, although the British money market does not seem favorable, provided it is pledged upon the railways, including those held by France and on the state monopolies of tobacco, matches, sugar and alcohol, Part of the loan will help to consti-tute the reserve of the bank of gold issue. The bank itself will be in Berlln, but the reserve will be placed in neutral towns. It will absorb the provisional bank which Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, is now establishing. Outcome of Controversy Over Lafavette Park Roads Is Generally Satisfactory

BAR HARBOR, Me., April 1 (Special)—Permanent residents of Bar Harbor and of the three other towns on Mt. Students are vitally interested in subjects of this character. Therefore the conference is called for the immediate benefit of the student combination but also that students thus munities, but also that students thus may be able to formulate a program which will bring the full force of their influence to bear upon the life of the Nation in a period of great anxiety. Fourth—That the organized interes in law enforcement, which has already manifested, itself, among students in several parts of the country, may be conserved and made available as a national message.

Four Student Conferences

At four significant student conferences, three of them held since Jan. 1, with delegates present from a total of 85 universities and colleges, the question of the undergraduate attitude toward enforcement was brought straight to the front. College students who might be inclined to ignore the law are finding college sentiments ris-ing against them. Student councils and undergraduate governing bodies, in increasing numbers in all parts of the country, are urging suspension and expulsion for those who violate the law of the land.

The four chief student conferences in support of the Volstead act, and the action taken at each, follow:

Washington—The Student Section of the National Citizenship Conference, Oct. 13 to 15, representing 40 colleges. A resolution calling for student action throughout the country was adopted.

Philadelphia, Jan. 13 — Delegates from 19 colleges of Pennsylvania New Jersey and New York discussed prevalent conditions and detailed proposals for action were drawn up. Washington, Jan. 12-13—At the conference of the Intercollegiate Pro hibition Association delegates present from Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Tennessee, Texas, and other states. Plans were pro-posed and a student committee

Boston-The New England Student Citizenship Conference, Jan. 19 to 21 brought 102 registered delegates from 22 colleges, including Yale, Harvard Boston University, Dartmouth, Brown Wesleyan, Wellesley, Simmons, Rad-cliffe, Mount Holyoke, Hartford Theological, Connecticut College and Bates, also representatives of university dailies and co-ordinating delegates from the Philadelphia and Washington conferences.

Positive resolutions were passed at all these conferences, definite pronouncements made against campus drinking, while Christian associations, student councils and governing bodies and college publications were urged to support the movement.

Record in the Colleges

There follows the record of recent action taken by 19 colleges, showing better than anything else could the actual sentiment of American college students on the subject of prohibition:

Brown University - The Camma-ian Club (Student Governing Body) has issued a statement emphatically condemning bootlegging and drunken-ness, and pledging itself to do its utto stamp out such practices when they appear.

LIBRARIES PLAN UNION'CATALOGUE

To Make Usable Combined Resources, Both Public and Private

Co-operation among libraries of ing instead of buying, was the subject of discussion last night at the regular monthly meeting of the Special Li-braries Association of Boston, held at the Insurance Library Association of

As libraries, to co-operate successfully, must know what the others have, there has been talk of a union catalogue to make public their combined resources. The Stone & Webster Library has started the project by engaging for three months the services of Miss Mabel F. Reed, who started work today on the proposed catalogue which is to be housed at the Boston Public Library. It is hoped at the end of this time the project will have proved its worth and other means found to keep it going.

Some difference of opinion exists as regards what the catalogue should contain. It was suggested that only expensive books be catalogued, but as worth cannot be determined always in terms of cost, a pamphlet costing nothing often being invaluable, it was advised to include in the catalogue, in addition to expensive material any-thing that was rare. Others held that even with these limitations the catalogue is too big an undertaking. It should not be a name list of individual books, but should contain subjects only, according to Charles C. Eaton, librarian of the Graduate School of Business Administration of Harvard.

George W. Lee, librarian of Stone & Webster, believes that the union catalogue will work out not only for co-operative use of material already bought but for co-operative buying as well. He explained

Now suppose the library needs a book not a whole 100 per cent, but, say, just 45 or 55 per cent. The library will agree, to buy this book provided another library will buy a book for which it too has only a partial need. By this census taking of libraries we can apportion our buying. Mr. Lee believes not only in cata oguing the resources of libraries, but also what people have in their homes He knows, for instance, a man who has been to Shanghai and has a map of the city. Mr. Lee continued:

Now that fact ought to be put in the catalogue, because I don't know a library that has a really good one. And if anyone knows all about New Zealand or Dresden, North Dakota, these facts should go in too. Mr. Lee has in his own home a col tion of 50 books on trees which he thinks by means of the Union Catalogue can be put at the disposal of those interested. Charles P. Cutter, librarian of the Arthur D. Little Company, who naturally would be thought of as an authority on things chemical, has for his hobby the State of Maine. In time Mr. Lee hopes the Union Catalogue will have an official organ, and already he has thought of two pos-sible names for the future publication "Co-ordinator" and Serendinity. His preference is for "Serendipity is rather ordinary and says just what it means. "Serendiphe explains is a rare word found only in the lower half of the diction ary page. It was coined by Horace Walpole and means "the gift of finding valuable and agreeable things not sought for."

By Cable from Monitor Bureau LONDON, April 1-The MacDonald Government has brought off a stroke in the commencement of arrangements for the reduction of interest on a small part the reduction of interest on a small part of Great Britain's enormous national debt. The moment has been well chosen for such action, when the London transport strike is settled and the final revenue statement for the past year is issued, showing the large surplus of £48,000,000, which brings the total redemption for the four years, 1920, 1921 to 1923 and 1924 to the large total of £426,000,000.

The present scheme affects only the 5 per cent war loan. The Government offers to convert £200,000,000 of this short-dated 5 per cent stock to a long-dated 4½ per cent issue on terms which have already given the market price of 5 per cent a distinct upward push. The offer appeals to trustees and others will-

It is calculated to save the taxpayer about £1,000,000 annually, and is regarded as an experiment which, if successful, will be followed by similar operations upon a larger scale hereafter. The scheme is entirely optional, and the extent of the rush to exchange the old security for the new will afford an indication of the extent to which the extension is possible,

Amendments Would Reduce the Size of Board of Aldermen and School Committee

Before the joint legislative Committee on Cities Dr. Paul H. Provandie, Mayor of Melrose, explained today at the State House certain amendments to the Melrose City Charter workmen in the shortest possible time which he asked the committee to favor in a report and bill to the Legislature. H. Ray Wilson, a member of the Melrose Board of Aldermen for seven years and for two years president of the board, supported the Mayor, as did several Melrose citizens Other citizens voiced their oppositio on the ground that the people of that city had not become informed as to the scope of the alterations proposed.

Mayor Provandie explained that the amendments, drawn up by a commit-tee of 25 citizens, which had been appointed as the result of the delibera tions of a committee of 100, provide for a board of aldermen of 11 members instead of 21 as at present. Mayor Provandie said that the committee of 25 had favored the smaller board of aldermen on the ground that at would be just as representative as the present body and far more capable of prompt action on the measures with which it will have to deal. which it will have to deal.

The plan provides that each of the seven Melrose wards will elect an Alderman and that four will be elected from the city at large. The aldermen are to serve as at present for terms of two years each, while there will be no change in the term of the Mayor. The present school committee of nine members will be reduced to five, should the plan proposed today become law. These five school committeemen are to be elected from the city a large as in the present board. Another change, and it is one upon which the citizens are by no mean agreed, if statements made today are a reflection of Melrose sentiment, that the city solicitor be appointed the Mayor without confirmation on the part of the board of aldermen as the present city charter provides. Con-solidation of the park and cemetery commissions of the city into one commission is also proposed.

The creation of the office of Building Commissioner is proposed, the commissioner to have charge of all city buildings except the school buildings and the Melrose City Library. The building commissioner would have to decide upon the character of all buildings to be erected within the city

Introduction of eliminating city primaries is also a change proposed. It would provide that primaries be held and from the candidates voted upon the two receiving the highest votes be the candidates at the regular municipal election following. In brief, the plan will provide for the printing upon the municipal ballot twice the number of candidates to be elected for he various offices. It is argued that it will always secure the election of a majority candidate for mayor of the city.

MILK PRICE CUT; STRIKE POSTPONED

New England Producers' Association Follows Action of the consumer and the postponement of a strike of milk wagon drivers marked today's developments in the intensely competitive period through which the New England milk industry has recently been passing and which was to have culminated in a strike today. With the price of milk charged by some distributors a cent to a cent and a half cheaper in Boston and new negotiations between the milk drivers employers through the State Board of Arbitration scheduled for today, hopes are high for a favorable outcome of the controversy. The New England Milk Producers'

Association, composed of 21,000 farmers, today put into effect a cut in the wholesale price of milk from 6½ to 6 cents a quart following a cut to 6 cents by the Turner Center system to its consumers. The Producers' Association had offered milk during April at the March figure of 6½ cents, and all the old-line distributors accepted the offer. The Turner Center Company, however, refused and voted to pay only 6 cents. This demand the to pay only 6 cents. This demand the John T. Moriarty, special justice of association was forced to meet and the Chicopee municipal court, will not last night made the announcement of be able to drive his automobile for some This means that some consumers in Boston will get milk at 101/2 cents delivered and 9 cents at

Two other large companies operating in Boston have not announced whether they would pass the cut in the wholesale price along to the consumer or not. Statements are being awaited from H. P. Hood & Sons and D. Whiting & Sons. The Hood company does not rely entirely on the New England association for its milk, but in the past has closely followed the prices thus set and has made its contracts accordingly.

Today's reduction is the fourth cut made in the same number of months, the price in December having been 91/2 cents a quart. Those familiar with the milk situation in New England believe these drops in prices will hasten the plans for an all inclusive co-opera tive milk marketing agency, on which committee of the farmers is now working.

Strike action by Milk Wagon Driv-ers' Union, Local 380; has been deferred until this evening. This decision was reached shortly before midnight last night when the men were ordered to report to their work this morning and take out their teams. The postponment is due to the work of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration which took a hand yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The milk dealers are to offer a proposition through the board and the proposition will be voted on tonight by the

Reduction Is Announced

Miss Finley began telegraphing for the rallroad at the age of 24 at a tiny station in Indiana. Her work was so good that she subsequently was considered for train dispatcher, but the policy ruling against a woman in such position barred her path. She was advanced to the Union Station in Chicago, and later worked in the office of the assistant general manager here. Since 1892, Miss Finley has been located at the Pennsylvania's passenger station in South Chicago.

CANDIDATE STANDS CAMP FIRE SERVICE CITED AT CONCLAVE

Its Training Declared Adapted to Needs of Girls All Over the World-Fosters Co-operation

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 1 (Special)—Exchange of opinion on the modern girl, the training she needs and the training afforded by Camp Fire marked busy sessions here last night and yesterday afternoon of the national convention of Camp Fire Girls. The sessions were directed by and for the several hundred Camp Fire guardians in attendance.

That the modern girl in her love of freedom and equality is in large part a product of war conditions when many women and girls were called upon to do the work of men, was a belief advanced by Mrs. Oliver Harriman of New York City, president of the Camp Fire Girls. She said:

The modern girl who caught the idea of assuming masculine responsibilities from the exigencies of war work, now often is following the path of what she calls freedom to dan-gerous limits. This type of girl is losing much that I believe she will regret later.

The simplicity which is the keynote of Camp Fire training is, I believe, what is needed. Success of the Camp Fire movement indicates that that belief is correct.

Perhaps the most interesting form of community project is the ship of the Camp Fire Girls in Seattle. An interested friend of the girls, who remains anonymous, bought one of the wooden fleet ships and presented it to the girls for headquarters.

The labor required to convert the wooden hull into clubrooms, tearooms, social hall, craft rooms, and offices was enormous and gave an opportunity for fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, and friends of the Camp Fire Girls to work together and know one another.

NEW EDUCATIONAL PLANS ANNOUNCED

Revamping of Dartmouth Curriculum Proposed

HANOVER, N. H., April 1 (Special) -A restatement of the college purpose and a proposed revamping of the curriculum are included in a communication sent to all Dartmouth upper classmen today by the special undergraduate committee appointed by E. M. Hopkins, president of the college, for the investigation of educational problems. The committee which is working in conjunction with the faculty committee on educational policy, has asked the students for criticisms of their proposed schedule of courses.

The purpose of the college, as viewed by the undergraduate committee, is stated in the following

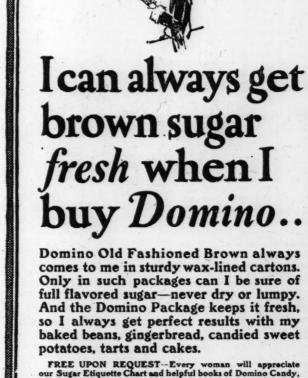

It is the purpose of the College to provide a selected group of men with a comprehensive background of information about the world and its problems, and to stimulate their capacity for rational thinking, philosophic understanding, creative imagination, and esthetic sensitiveness. In order to inspire them to use these developed powers in becoming leaders in service to society.

Required courses predominate in the schedule suggested for the first two years of the college course. Following the required courses will be two years in which the required courses will be reduced to four in number and will limit students only in major depart-ment requirements. Several new courses are included in the proposed utline of study.

The freshmen, both A. B. and B. S. candidates, according to the plan of the committee, would be required to take courses as follows: English literature and composition, historical background of contemporary civilization, the nature of the world, modern language, and the technique of thinking (one hour per week). Latin and mathematics would also be required of the A. B. and the B. S. candidates respectively.

All students would be subject to the same requirements after the freshman year. During sophomore study all undergraduates would take courses in literature, natural science, present day problems, and either a philosophy or an art course. One elective subject would be added to the list of studies for the second year.

TEN MILLION FUND IS HARVARD'S GOAL

Bishop Lawrence Opens Drive-Business, Chemistry, and Art,

NEW YORK, April 1—Before an audience composed of leading business men, bankers, and representatives of the liberal arts, gathered at the University Club tonight, the Rt. Rev. Bishop Lawrence's address, which was broadcast, follows in part:

Home, school and church are appreciated in theory and in practice. Three other factors are more pervasive and powerful than we appreciate. They are essential to the character, safety and prosperity of the country, vital to America's commonweal—business, chemistry, art. Washington and its virtues and vices reflect the character and habits of our people. The conditions there today are not due primarily to politics, nor to conscious dishonesty, but to the fact that men generally well intentioned, facing strange conditions, under unaccustomed pressure, do not think straight. The agricultural problem of this Nation is a critical one; it affects our political, financial and social life. While fertile fields were untilled, we thoughtlessly prospered—the use of agricultural machinery met the earliercrisis, irrigation and a few artificial fertilizers met the next situation. Today the people are moving from the fields into the towns and cities. We shall have our homes, mills, railroads and clothes, but what shall we have to eat? Agriculture is at the foundation of a people's well-being. There are in each acre of land the elements which if skillfully/treated through chemical skill will bring forth the products of from two to teneres as now cultivated. Intensive farming and the laboratory of the university must get into partnership. Art museums are rising in our great cities. Soon art centers will rise by the thousands throughout our land. We must prepare for this call for beauty. Teachers, leaders, curators, connoisseurs, advisers, art restorers must be in the making now; and they can best be trained in the atmosphere and amidst the libraries, associations, and collections of our universites. Today Harvard with Princeton is the only university that has really begun

St. James Theater—George A. Giles presents the Boston Stock Company in "Peg O' My Heart." a comedy of youth, by J. Hartley Manners, in three acts Ann Mason as the saucy Peg romped through three delightful acts to a pro-nounced success last night in a play that has endeared itself to a generation of theater-goers. Except in one or two instances, which were not of a na-ture to cause unfavorable comment, the performance was smoothly carried out.
The setting was well done, and the two opportune rainstorms realistic.
The play pictures a well-mannered,
self-centered, well-to-do British family,

"Peg O' My Heart"

whose complacency is upset by the arrival, as from the clouds, of an unsus pected cousin, Peg, the little Irish girl, with her beloved dog, Michael. The story is too well known to recite here; suffice to say, Peg brings a breath of human freedom with her, a knowledge of the human heart derived from the Irish father whom she adores, an en gaging frankness that tears the mask from the rather hypocritical existence of her unwilling hosts, and a charm that brings proposals of marriage from every man that comes on the scene, ex-cept Jarvis, the butler.

Ann Mason was a charming, piquant, In the meanwhile Mary's lover, John Cousins, a country "wise guy," is also in New York having left his native heath to make his fortune in the big city. John's principal occupation consists of posing as a model for Sonya Maison, a designer of posters, to whose Bohemian quarters comes Mary with her cookies, Many comic and romantic complications ensue.

Jane Richardson plays Mary. She sings and dances as one would expect a little country girl to do. Eddie Buzzell as John Cousins amused the large audience. Russell Mack and Miss Midgie Miller as Jack Hayden and Libby O'Day are a hard working team, and Miss Miller's dancing was a pleasing feature. Miss Bertee Beaumont, the Sonya, gave a wild characterization of a temperamental artist of the Bohemian type.

"The Gingham Girl" is a pleasing as the Gingham Girl" is a pleasing as the good natured, rather lazy and accommodating Alaric, who would do anything for the family but work. Jerry, as the conventional hero, gave a creditable performance, though hardly as ardent a lover as Peg or even the audience, would like.

the executive committee of the New England Traffic League and chairman of the special committee to deal with traffic executives of the National Industrial Traffic League, offered a plur that received tavorable attention. He pointed out that if the United States is to have a successful merchant marine the La Follette Seamen's Act, which Prescribes living conditions, etc., on-American vessels, must be repealed c else a federal subsidy must be given to American vessels. At present, the Shipping Board can put Section 28 into effect, he said, if it finds one single port that is able to handle all traffic to one foreign port, regardless of the other trade routes or other American ports. Mr. Chandler recommended the following amendment to Section 28: "Provided, however, this section shall traffic experts, shipping interests and business men, at the Harvard Ciub last evening.

The meeting was called by the Martransportation charges from interior points in such country to the foreign port, or otherwise."

Mr. Chandler also referred to the Newton bill, now before Congress, which seeks to amend Section 28 by giving the Interstate Commerce Commission discriminatory powers for en-forcement. This bill was criticised and the following amendment to it was recommended by Mr. Chandler as the best solution:

Provided, however, when the board has certified to the commission that adequate facilities are afforded by vessels documented under the laws of the United States between ports in the United States the commission, upon complaint that such facilities are not afforded from any or all ports in the United States, may suspend its order, and after full hearing if it is of the opinion that it would be in the public interest and of advantage to the convenience and commerce of the people to modify its order in whole or in part, it may do so in case the evidence shows that adequate facilities are not afforded at any port or ports by vessels so documented.

WORLD PROBLEMS TO BE DISCUSSED

Methodist General Conference to Take Up Peace and Dry Issues

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 1 (Special)-Of the several hundred memorials that will be brought before the Methodists at their general conference, opening here on May 1, a num-ber will deal with problems of inter-national moment and broad public purport. Outstanding in this group is the question of America's membership in the Permanent Court of Arbitration and the general problem of world LIQUOR BUYERS peace, which are sure to come up for intensive study and discussion

Questions of theology are not expected to play a large part in the de-liberations, but issues related to church government and polity are sure to claim a large degree of atten-tion. The issue of clerical as opposed to lay influence in guiding policies and determining decisions may come sharply to the forefront. Questions of Episcopal supervision and especially the relations of the mother church or-ganization to the church work of the foreign field will stir the delegates, with rumblings of the coming struggle for independent, self-governing bodies in place of dependent and controlled members in India, China and countries where agitation for such a change is rife. In this connection Bishops Thomas B. Neely and Frederick B. Fisher, respective exponents of conservatism and progressivism, may cause the auditorium to resound with their oratory.

The question of limiting the tenure ments by the bishops, also that of frequent changes of field for church leaders, from bishops down, are coming up. The five-year limit on a sound with the situation new legislation will be sought which will provide for loss of citizenship rights.

TO BE PROSECUTED

HARTFORD, Conn., April 1 (Spe cial)—In presenting his plea for the sentence of two men convicted of selling liquor to various prominent persons in this city, Hugh M. Alcorn, state's attorney, announced that he proposed to invoke the statute which makes it possible to prosecute per-sons who aid or abet in the commission of crime.

Mr. Alcorn said the case had stirred the community, and would have a wholesome effect because of the reasonable certainty that persons who buy liquor of bootleggers will be sooner or later exposed and humiliated. He said that it was his intention to move against purchasers as well as sellers in the future.

The pictures of the Cape represent the dramatic group, including the ravishing "Autumn at its Height" and "Red Weed." How convincingly the elements dominate in "Winter in the Dunes." And the dunes themselves; with what luminosity the sand reflects the sunlight! The oleander hedges are painted with greater calm. Campaign Planned to Obtain Recognition for This Branch of Government Service

Boston custom officials, through the Employees' Personnel Committee and the Federal Employees' Union, are planning a more intensive campaign than ever, to secure a fair remuneration for the duties performed by employees of the customs service, following the announcement from Washington that the conferees considering the Treasury appropriation bill had struck out from the measure the Senate amendment which would have granted $2,500,000 additional to the customs divisions of the Government. The ap-propriation was intended to increase the pay of laborers and other em-ployees of this branch of the federal sist that the apparent failure of the appropriation, which would have been used during the fiscal year beginning July 1, next, is but an inducement to redouble their efforts to secure "fair treatment." In this connection, Herbert G. Brauer, chairman of the Em-ployees' Personnel Committee of the Boston customs officials, in an interview with a representative of The Christian Science Monitor, explains the need of additional funds for salaries in the customs department. He

This branch of government service is as old as the United States itself, and until recently has always had an enviable reputation among govern-ment departments for efficiency. It ment departments for efficiency. It has numbered among its personnel many men of brilliancy and distinction, but, with the passing of time, the lack of foresightedness on the part of our Congress to make this service attractive to men and women of ability and integrity has resulted in a deterioration far from satisfactory to those whose business depends on the efficiency of the customs, or those now in the service struggling to do the best they can against great odds to maintain the high standard of business efficiency necessary in this branch of government service. On account of the unattractiveness of customs work financially, men and women are not entering the service, as in positions outside they are re-ceiving twice the salaries paid cus-

A free test of a way to remove film on teeth

This ten-day test is yours for the asking. It will show you the way to whiter, cleaner teeth. It will convince you that old methods of teeth cleaning are wrong. Let us prove that to you.

It removes film

The great object is to remove film on teeth-that viscous film you feel. Under old methods, much of that film remains. It clings and stays. It becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. The result is teeth ever clouded and unclean.

Modern science has for years sought ways to remove that film, and two methods have been found. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation, one removes it without harmful scouring.

These methods have proved

Agricultural Training Must Save the Country

AUCKLAND, March 1—The new chancellor of the New Zealand Uni-versity, Prof. J. Macmillan Brown, has achieved the distinction of delivering an opening address to the Senate that has interested the public more than any similar address for many years perhaps in the whole history of the university. For the first time the chancellor of the university of this country, which lives by making the land produce, devoted most of his ad-dress to agricultural education and research—gave, in fact, to these subjects the importance that was their

A Specialist in "Humanities" This action of the chancellor was all the more notable by reason of the fact that he is by training and profession a specialist in the "humanities," having been a pupil of the famous Jowett at Baliol and professor of English and classics in a New Zealand college. No natural scientist, however, could have put the case for the onnection between agriculture and higher education better than Professor Brown. He said: There is a consciousness abroad that most of the advantages of a virgin soil have been exhausted, and that the farmer must be aided by the experience of others, but most of all by scientific investigation. Farmers are no longer the most prosperous section of the community, as is shown by the larger percentages, of bankruncies the community, as is shown by the large percentages of bankruptcies among them during the last two or three years. The high prices of their roduce during war time raised the price of land in many districts beyond its profitable employment, and if the price of wool and dairy produce and mutton were to fall, our fundamental industry, and, as a consequence, the welfare of the whole country, would be in the direst peril.

Only by producing more and im- its prosperity.

ONDON'S street transport is once more normal. The strikers' bal-lots have gone, as anticipated, strongly for the very favorable terms

New Zealand meet the menace of lower NEW ZEALAND NEED prices, and to do this there must be more education of the farmer and more research by trained men.

Chancellor of University Asserts

The chancellor had a good deal to say about the neglect of agricultural education in New Zealand, a strange education in New Zealand, a strange neglect when it should be so apparent that the whole prosperity of the country is bound up with the prosperity of the farmer. Yet it is perhaps not so strange as it seems. New Zealand is a very rich country naturally, and over large areas money has been made without a great deal of trouble, without bothering much about methods or giv-ing the research chemist much to do.

Foreign Competition

But times have changed. It has become necessary to use more of the in-ferior land, and that land must be wisely treated if it is to yield good results. Moreover, foreign competition is becoming keener every year. Yet there is only one college in the Dominion to which a young man can go to learn to be at once a practical and a theoretical farmer. That college has to refuse students every year. Besides, as the chancellor pointed out, it is impossible for that college to teach methods that are suitable for all the great variety of soil land climate in the Dominion, and the high quality of its farm area is actually a disad-vantage when its students afterward are called upon to farm poor land.

The chancellor insisted that only the university could meet these needs. The university must be the training ground for the many teachers of agricultural subjects that the country needed. Every high school, and ultimately every primary school, must, have on its staff a teacher who could train pupils in the fundamental principles and methods of the agriculture of its locality. All agricultural in-spectors, instructors of teachers and teachers of agriculture in high schools, should hold the university's degree in that subject. The colleges of the university should put out a steady stream of research workers, steady stream of research workers, for research in agriculture, the fundamental industry of New Zealand, would become more and more vital to

OXFORD INITIATES A RESEARCH CORPS

University to Investigate Value Agricultural Machinery for Farmer's Benefit

Special from Monitor Bureau of Oxford University have decided to set up a Research Institute in agricultural engineering in response to an invitation recently made by the Ministry of Agriculture. This decision marks a step of the utmost importance in the agricultural progress of Great Britain, where the lack of facilities for testing farm machinery has been keenly felt for many years past.

A Special Technical Staff

The possibility of encouraging the use of more up-to-date machinery among farmers was considered by the Government in 1921, with the result that an advisory committee, consisting of agricultural authorities, prominent farmers, makers of farm machinery, and officials, was set up. This committee in their report advised the Ministry of Agriculture to "assume direct responsibility for the whole of the work in connection with agricultural machinery" and further advocated that the ministry should appoint a special in agricultural engineering. The fact that the ministry has delegated its responsibilities in this matter to the to sharp criticism in trading circles, where anxiety is being expressed concerning the practical utility of work carried out by an academic institution.

Whether or not this criticism is justified remains to be seen, but if the line carried concerning to be seen, but if the line carried concerning the practical utility of work against 2,200,000 in 1922. The inspect of the Spitzbergen and Advent the lines of research advocated by the advisory committee are faithfully followed out by the new Research Institute at Oxford, both farmers and agri-cultural engineering firms should reap considerable benefit from the scheme It is suggested that a series of investi-gations should be carried out to test the value of a number of machines, which have been designed to perform the same operation. In this connection, tests have been proposed with regard to cultivating machinery, threshing machines, manure distributors, potato planters, corn drills, hedge cutting machinery and dairy appliances.

Improvements in Farm Machinery

Some interesting suggestions have also been made by the advisory com-mittee, indicating the most probable directions in which practical improvements in farm machinery can be made. With regard to tractor work, it is stated that greater durability of machines is required in order to reduce the cost of repairs and maintenance. The present design of tractor plows requires alteration to bring about increased speed without loss of effi-

For the purpose of reducing the cost of tillage, it is proposed that steps should be taken to introduce a machine canable of preintroduce a machine capable of preparing a seed-bed in one operation after plowing. The high cost of labor involved in the cultivation of root crops in Great Britain has brought forth the suggestion from the advisory committee that machinery should be designed for root thinning and har-

With the exception of the criticism that has been made by makers of farm machinery, the news of the estab-lishment of Research Institute at Oxford has been received with enthusiasm in farming circles. Improve-ments in the efficiency of agricultural machinery provide one of the surest means of increasing the profits made by arable farmers, and in the past agriculturists have found it difficult to CLUB TO BE RESTORED IN JAPAN TOKYO. LONDON, March 5—In the course of a paper read before the Institute of Transport, Richard J. Howley reviewed the history of the road in Great Britain from the time of the Romans to the present day. His main point was that roads, having been superseded by railways for gen-eral haulage and travel, are, since the advent of the motor, coming back into their own, and that the aim of the railways should be not so much competition as co-operation.

Austrian Literature as a Key to the Understanding of a Nation

Special Correspondence

AUSTRIAN literature, with its accurate portrayal of national character, furnishes many clues to an understanding of the present Austrian problem, but unfortunately, this literature is little known abroad. When in the Middle Ages an unknown Austrian author composed the "Lay of the Niebelungs," that permanent problem of the Danubian countries, the meeting of races of different heritage and development, confronted him and he had to lead the Rhenish

Compared with other medieval literature where pagans and foreign race is treated in this epic. This may be a remnant of Gothic traditions in these parts, the Goths having been a link between west and east, before they became extinct. Another early Austrian poet was Walther von der Vogelweide, a milistrel of sweet love lyrics, as well as of keen political sons, very rare at that time. Other poets, like wolds are two Neuenthal, in that epoch of court life and chivalry turned their attention to rustic seenes, discovering the poor peasant; and many others did not spare strictures on the clergy.

Bohemia and Hungary, and Vienna had become a Hapsburg military stronghold, all democratic and Protestant efforts were cruelly put down. The Jesuits reigned supreme, and intellectual and literary life was suppressed. Only late in the seventeenth century, when the Turks were driven from the siege of Vienna, did it revive. At that time some preachers began to use the pulpit for so-cial criticism; the most renowned was Abraham a Sancta-Clara, who hailed from German Suabia. Within late years his works have been reprinted by the Vienna mountain. by the Vienna municipality in a definitive edition.

Then an interval of freedom during the reign of Joseph II saw a growth of radical literature, and, for the first time, the rise of and, for the first time, the rise of really humanitarian authors like Sonnenfels. Hopes for freedom increased when the Bastille was stormed: Mozart's "Zauberflöte" (Magic Flute) was acted with a Masonic text which most people understood very well and relished. But presently all this was crushed, under the pretext of a Jacobin plot. Some radicals were hanged. One of these writers, Ferginand dairy mund, is generally recognized as a true poet, and his plays, with their fantastical mythology, are still acted. A little later another playwright Johann Nestroy, used stronger sarcasm and scathing social criticism; his and scathing social criticism; his sics, wrote his tragedies, one of which placed the hostile Hapsburg brothers, King Mathias and Emperor Rudolph II, on the stage. Production of this play was forbidden for many years.

Many younger poets in the thirties and forties could not forgo publishing radical political lyrics, which had to be printed in Leipzig or Hamburg, but these lyrics, as well as many prose pamphlets, secretly entered Austria by smuggling, which every bookseller practiced and every custom official was bribed to countenance. Anastasius Grün (Count Auersperg) was the most gifted of these poets. A really immortal poet also frequenting Viennese literary circles in those years was Nikolaus Lenau, the author of "Die Albigenser" and of "Savonarola," but he was born and brought up in Hungary and in later years was associated with a group of poets in Württemberg; so Austria can claim but little of him. The young German radical poets in Bohemia, like Alfred Meissner and Hartmann, in the forties expressed their opposition to the Hapsburg system and also their sincere desire to see the two nations in their country live on fraternal terms by writing epics on heroes of Czech history like Ziska, the leader of the Hussites; this current was cut short by

INDUSTRIES FAIR TO OPEN APRIL 28

London Section Will Display New Exhibits to Cover Nearly Every British Industry

Special from Monitor Bureau LONDON, March 20—Work has now commenced on the actual erection of this year's British Industries Fair, which as in the past, is being organized by the Department of Overseas Trade. The London section of the Trade. The London section of the fair will open on April 28. Among the novelties to be shown are a patent handle for hot water jugs, kettles, and so on, which cannot get hot and is, moreover, unbreakable. Patent office records show that there bave been many attempts to solve this problem.

Possibly there will be no need for further attempts.

This innovation will be found in the rins innovation will be found in the same section will also contain a novelty which it is hoped will have considerable value for ships or those living in remote places overseas, where the ordinary commodities of daily use are not readily accessible. This is no least to readily accessible. stant demand on a dinner table.

British manufacturers of hollow-ware have now succeeded in producing all forms of electroplated goods in one piece. The absence of joints and seams completely eliminates all danger of leaking, and also enables such articles to take an exceptionally high polish. This innovation has already attracted considerable attention among buyers, and is expected to reattracted considerable attention among buyers, and is expected to re-sult in considerable business for the Musical instrument makers have also many new lines to display, which provide a very happy augury for the future of this industry. There will, for example, be displayed a five-octave piano measuring only 3 feet 6 inches in height, of an equal length, and be-ing only 1 foot 9 inches wide. Al-though it is complete in every detail and possesses perfect tone, its total weight is only 220 pounds.

Buyers from damp or humid countries, where the wooden parts of piano actions have usually only a short life, will be interested to know that British enterprise has now solved the trouble enterprise has now solved the trouble by the invention of patent sotion made throughout in metal. It has the further advantage that all parts are standardised and can consequently be Interchanged.

The portable gramophone will be represented by a new model measuring only 7x6¼ inches. Despite its size, it is said to give a volume and clarity of sound equal to that of standard sizes. It is specially intended for picnics and river parties and for those in remote places overseas.

New and patented inventions in this section also include gramophone sound boxes which are claimed to be a big advance on anything of a similar nature yet put on the market. The new and original exhibits which will be a feature of this year's fair are by no means confined to the sec-tions mentioned here. They cover almost every British industry.

The interest the fair has excited, especially from buyers overseas, is evidenced not only by the record number of pledges to attend, but by the fact that many buyers will be coming from countries which have not been represented at previous fairs.

WITHOUT POLITICS FOREST PROTECTION IMPROVES IN INDIA

CALCUTTA, Feb. 18 (Special Correspondence)—The report of the Chief Conservator of Forests, Central Provinces, for the period 1922-23 notes that, during the period in question he and his staff were able to attend to their legitimate duty of protecting forests, thanks to the dying down of the disturbing influence set about by nonco-operation and to an improvement in the general economic condition following a favorable monsoon.

The result of freedom from political troubles is seen in an increase of surplus revenue; in a fall in the area burnt; in the stricter attention paid to otherwise grazing, and the beginning of a more intensive policy of tending and thinning. More would have been done had funds permitted the financing of schemes, and had the necessary staff existed to carry them out. The financial results of the year showed a net surplus of 1,675,000 rupees, revenue attaining the record figure of 4,700,000 rupees, while expenditure was 3,033,000 rupees as against 2,715,- 000 rupees in the previous year.

The recommendations of the Central Provinces Retrenchment Commit-tee to concentrate the chief conservator and other conservators in a single central office at Nagpur have been ac-cepted. This measure is expected to lead to a substantial reduction in office expenditure, and to facilitate con-sultation of the administrative officers, both among themselves and with the Government. The construction of roads forms an extremely important part of forest work, and it is gratifying to forest work, and it is gratifying to note that the Government have drawn up a program of roads expected to prove productive, and hope to supply the supply ment it from time to time.

NEW ZEALAND MAKES

INTELLIGENCE TESTS TO SHOW BOYS' ABILITY

AUCKLAND, March 3 (Special Correspondence)-For the first time the Education Department of New Zealand has just held an intelligence test among the boys of the state schools. The test follows the lines of similar tests in America (where the idea started), Britain, and Australia, but it is said that this is the first time central office at Nagpur have been accepted. This measure is expected to lead to a substantial reduction in of-both among themselves and with the Government. The construction of roads forms an extremely important part of forest work, and it is gratifying to note that the Government have drawn up a program of roads expected to prove productive, and hope to supplement it from time to time.

The test was divided into 10 classes, to determine general information, the best type of answer to a simple question, the meaning of words, logical selection of words, arithmetic, the meaning of a sentence, analogies, mixed sentences, and number series. Each test contained a dozen or twenty questions. questions. The idea was to get data bearing on the mental ability of boys about to enter technical schools, so FINE WAR RECORD it will be easier to classify them. The BOMBAY, Feb. 18 (Special Correspondence)—In opening the Lascar (Indian sailor) memorial recently. Lord Lytton, Governor of Bengal, paid a high tribute to the loyal and devoted service of the Lascars during the war. He said that Bengal's contribution to the manning of ships was remarkable. Not only did she man her own ships in Calcutta and Chittagong, but sent crews to Egypt, Natal, Great Britain, and Cape Colony.

In addition, Bengal sent 5000 Lascars to Rangoon, 7000 to Colombo, and 14,000 to Bombay. In other words, Bengal supplied complete crews for over 300 ships which sailed from those three ports during the war, in addition to fhose which sailed from her own ports. Not a single Lascar refused to serve for fear of the enemy's action. The monument perpetuated the memory of 832 Lascars who had made the supreme sacrifice in the service of the Empire.

For, as Sardou once said on the subject, playwriting is a most laborious thing. It is easy enough to find the embryo, but what matters is the creation of the environment and the finding of the apt word and phrase; the economy of distribution; the correct calculation of the moment to bring the curtain down. His way was first of all to seek the milieu. When, for in-stance, he wrote "Les Bons Villa-geois," he went to live for a while in a countryside townlet, mixed with local society and studied thely ways and thoughts, till temporarily as it were, plied. he had become one of the denizens, and could express himself as they did.

When he wrote "Fedora" he did not go to Russia, it is true, but he sought the acquaintance of the revolution-aries in Paris, learnt the machinery of Nihilism, their ideals, listened to their views, uttered in exuberant and flery words, probed their underground working, their spy-system, their con- ure was often of archaic simplicity he wrote "Tosca" he spent months in Italy in devotion to art, heraldry and traditions, for he was a great stickler for accuracy of scenic details.

No scenario for him—I doubt whether he knew what it was—no dwelling on details and accuracy. The play was the thing; history had to adapt itself to his ideas. He did not trouble his head how the characters would have expressed themselves, he made them speak as he heard them in his imagina-tion. His mastery of his mother tongue was not even beyond suspicion, his grammar weird and wonderful.

The literary value of his plays was nil, but the effect immense. He wet-ted more handkerchiefs than the great it with big guns, or ride over it with ner. It was when we tried to get intragedies of the classics. His gift tanks and armored cars, but it always was to work upon the emotions. He knew exactly how to turn on the was right. when I related the methods of the Dutch playwright to a British dramatist who is all to the fore, he tore his hair. He would hardly credit it. To him, playwrighting was like househim, playwrighting was like house-building—stone upon stone; and when he came to the last act he was always afraid, he said, lest the roof would sink in. He told me that the average play cost him a year, that to get the

One more example. In the eightles there were two collaborators in Germany, a comedian and a witty jour-nalist. These two churned out comedies and farces by the dozen and most of their plays enjoyed not only long runs but ran like wildfire over the Continent and across the Channel as well as the Atlantic. Mr. Kent's thorough-going study of Blenkarn reminded one of his vivid performance in the part of Urich Heep in "Little Em'ly," at the Castle Square Theater some years ago when Wiathrop Ames was manager. Of Mr. Kent's 44 years of stage work he has given 28 wears to stock. In 1900 he was in a stock company in Toronto with which Mary Pickford was playing child's parts. In his trunk is a photograph of her at that time. "She was a sweet little thing," Mr. Kent remarked as he transformed his face into Blenkarn's in preparation for last Friday's matinée. As he wielded his paints he talked of the great players he had known, and with aptness and brevily touched on the qualities that made their acting memorable. "They were great," he said, "not merely because the theater of their time gave players a richer and broader training than the sheater of today, but because they had strong and unusual personalities."

Theater, where he is now playing in "Merton of the Movies." It was while he was putting on the first of the two makeups he uses in "Merton" that he talked of his brief stage experience with a caller. It became plain that he is well fead in stage history, for he quoted pathy from one of Bernard Shaw's dramatic crificisms to point his remarks about the watchfulness needed to keep a performance from growing mechanical in the course of a long run. He is shortly to begin a picture engagement with Lloyd Carleton-Productions, taking the part of the Ninth Marquis of Weymies in "Hard-Boiled Mable," a story by George Weston. Predicting the ultimate success or fail-

Predicting the ultimate success or failure of a play during the first week of its performances is almost as precarious as prophesying its possibilities after having read the manuscript. If, however, we may fudge by the whole-hearted erijoyment with which the audiences now assembling at the Hudson Theater receive the new play, "Across the Street," visitors to the Democratic convention in June will find it still playing on Forty-Fourth Street. It will not, as a matter of fact, greatly surprise if the play remains at the Hudson for a year or more. While entirely different from "Ahie's Irish Rose," it has the same general popular appeal. There is a kind of play that is the more scoffed at "Arross the Street" is the Chautauqua "Arross the Street" is the Chautauqua carious as prophesying its possibilities after having read the manuscript. If, however, we may judge by the whole-hearted erijoyment with which the audiences now assembling at the Hudson Theater receive the new play, "Across the Street," visitors to the Demogratic convention in June will find it still playing on Forty-Fourth Street. It will not, as a matter of fact, greatly surprise if the play remains at the Hudson for a year or more. While entirely different from "Abic's Irish Rose," it has the same general popular appeal. There is a kind of play that is the more scoffed at by the savants the longer it runs. "Across the Street" is one of those plays.

Richard A. Purdy, who wrote "Across Richard A. Purdy, who wrote "Across the Street." is the most popular banker known to New York theatrical folk. He is an inveterate theatergoer and no important movement for the betterment of the theater or its people during the past 20 years has lacked his encouragement and active support (usually in the capacity of treasurer) and at the mere mention of the name Shakespeare Mr. Purdy reaches for his hat and coat and starts for the "hall."

Mr. Purdy knows the theater and

and starts for the "hall."

Mr. Purdy knows the theater and loves it and he knows good literature and loves it. He very likely also knows exactly what he has written in his play "Across the Street." It is possible to both enjoy good literature and write unliterary nonsense. Mr. Purdy very likely sat down to write some entertaining nonsense and he has done exactly what he has started out to do, with the result that the audiences laugh heartily at what he has written.

The familiar plot concerns two young men with a bright idea for quickly getting rich. They are first seen as located in positions entirely foreign to their inclinations: A born newspaper editor is forced.

REVIEW OF TRADE AND FINANCE IN CANADA FOR WEEK

ures also indicate heavy imports from the United States.

While much of the increase in carloadings at home is due to the heavier movement of grain than was experienced a year ago, it is a noteworthy fact that during the last week eastern Canada has reported an increase of 10,000 car loadings as compared with the number for the corresponding week last year.

Railroad Construction

The Canadian Pacific Railway and he Canadian National Railways both

The Canadian Pacific Rallways and the Canadian National Rallways both contemplate considerable construction work this year, especially in the west. The Canadian Pacific will build probably about 200 miles of new line; while the Canadian National's program calls for a three year's construction period, in which nearly 1000 miles of new lines are provided for, at a cost of probably $30,000,000. This has yet to receive the sanction of Parliament.

These railway systems operate a large merchant marine, and both announce the operation of new routes. The Canadian Pacific vessels on the Pacific will call at Manila; while the Canadian Government will put on a much enlarged service between Vancouver and Montreal.

It is probable that the efforts which have been made by the National Hydro-Electric and other power development corporations to secure long term leases for the export of power to the United States will be successful. The National, which proposes to develop about 200,000 horsepower at Carilion, near the confluence of the St. Lawrence and Ottawa rivers, expects, with such a license, to sell fully 50,000 horsepower in the United States, considerable of which will go to New England.

NEW YORK. April 1—An increase in the dividend payments of Martin-Parry Corporation from $3 to $4, a share annually is likely to be voted when directors meet about the middle of April. A year ago the stock was placed on a $3 annual basis, following dispursement of dividends at the rate of $2 a share annually, which had been in effect since March, 1920.

Martin-Parry's earnings, according to officials, are steadily expanding; and showing a good increase from month to month. For the year ended Dec. 31, 1923, the company reported net profits after all charges of $553,066, equal to $6.53 a share on 100,000 no-par shares. The company has no funded debt or other obligations senior to the stock issue. Last year's earnings compare with 1922 net profits of $402,248, or $4.02 as share on 100,000 no-par shares. The company has Easy money conditions have brought a number of borrowers into the market. The Ontario Government has sold an issue of $2,000,000, 5 per cent seven months treasury bills to the Bank of Montreal at 100.29

An additional $3,000,000 was sold to the Continental Trust & Savings Company of Chicago at 100.29. The price is on a 4.49 basis, but the price is much higher, for interest and principal are payable in American funds. The Nova Scotia Government has also sold an issue of $2,500,000 20-year 5 per cent bonds to the Canadian Bank of Commerce, at 98.82 Canadian funds.

The City of Toronto is again in the market for money with an issue of $5,-248,000 5 per cent bonds of varying ma-

Freight Traffic Continues at High Level—Considerable New Financing

OTTAWA, April 1 (Special)—Railway earnings and car loadings in Canada continue to show gratifying increases, those for February and March being the best for these months that have been reported in years.

Railway car loadings for the week ended March 22 were 59.580, an increase of 12.332, or about 25 per cent over the number for the corresponding week ended March 22 were 59.580, an increase of 12.332, or about 25 per cent over the number for the corresponding week ended March 22 were 59.580, an increase of 12.332, or about 25 per cent over the number for the corresponding week ended March 22 were 59.580, an increase in captures also indicating that the overflow of American traffic is quite large. These figures also indicate heavy imports from the United States.

$30,000,000 Government of Switzerland 51/2% External Loan Gold Bonds

Interest to be payable April 1 and October 1.

To mature April 1, 1946

Coupon bonds in denominations of $1,000 and $500.

Redeemable, at the option of the Government, as a whole but not in part, at 100% and accrued interest, on April 1, 1934, or on any interest date thereafter, upon sixty days' notice.

Both principal and interest of the bonds will be payable in United States gold coin of the present standard of weight and fineness, in New York City, at the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co., or of the National City Bank, without deduction for any tax or taxes now, or at any time hereafter, imposed by the government of Switzerland, or by any taxing authority thereof or therein.

The following statement has been authorized by the Federal Financial Department of the Swiss government: These bonds are to be direct external obligations of the Swiss Confederation (Government of Switzerland) The total debt of the government of Switzerland at December 31, 1923, was approximately $900,-

000,000, of which about $461,000,000 represents indebtedness incurred in connection with the purchase and improvement of the Federal Railways. For many years preceding the war, the operation of the Federal Railways had always resulted in a surplus over interest charges. In 1923, as the result mainly of the systematic reduction of operating expenses, the net revenues from operation of the Federal Railways showed a large increase. Such net revenues amounted to 117,941,096 francs in 1923, as compared with 37,928,150 francs in 1922, and with 79,443,599 francs in 1913, and were more than sufficient to cover interest charges for the year on the railway debt.

The Federal Railways, which have a total length of about 1,880 miles, or more than one-half of the total railway mileage in Switzerland, are gradually being electrified. As of December 31, 1923, more than 360 miles were under electric operation. Switzerland has large resources of water power, estimated at 2,700,000 horsepower, the increased utilization of which should result in substantial reduction of the quantity of coal which now has to be imported.

The general debt of the Government of Switzerland (exclusive of the railway debt) amounted to about $439,000,000 on December 31, 1923. Of the three loans previously issued in the United States, aggregating $75,000,000 and constituting (with the present issue of bonds) the entire external debt of the Swiss Government, about $14,000,000 has been retired by the Government. As a partial offset to its general debt, the Government owns the telephone and telegraph systems and has other property, securities and special funds, all aggregating approximately $250,000,000 in value.

The currency system of Switzerland is in a strong position. The amount of outstanding bank-notes of the National Bank of Switzerland, which has the sole power of note issue, has been reduced during the past three years, and on March 15, 1924, the Bank held a reserve in gold and silver equivalent to about 74.19% of its note circulation. As a result of its sound monetary condition, Switzerland has been able to maintain a favorable exchange rate for the Swiss franc as compared with other Euro-

All figures stated in dollars in the above statement, have been converted from Swiss francs at par of exchange.

THE ABOVE BONDS ARE OFFERED FOR SUBSCRIPTION, SUBJECT TO ISSUE AS PLANNED AND TO THE APPROVAL BY COUNSEL OF THE LEGALITY, AT 971/2% AND ACCRUED INTEREST, TO YIELD 5.70%.

Subscription books will be opened at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., at 10 o'clock, A. M., Tuesday, April 1, 1924. The right is reserved to reject any and all applications, and also in any case, to award a smaller amount than applied for. The amount due on allotments will be payable on or about April 15, 1924, at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., in New York funds against delivery of temporary bonds or interim receipts, exchangeable for definitive bonds when prepared and received.

FRANC CRISIS APPEARS OVER NEW YORK, April 1—Having used about one-third of the $100,000,000 credit which J. P. Morgan & Co. and a syndicate of bankers advanced for the purpose of stabilizing the franc, in the market, the Bank of France is now gradually paying off its borrowings. This is taken in banking circles to mean that the crisis of the franc is over, and that the general economic situation in France will bring about naturally further improvement.

PRICE MOVEMENTS IN COTTON MARKET PUZZLE VETERANS

In a review and analysis of the cotton market, Munds & Winslow say: In a market of the character witnessed recently, any attempt to associate normal supply and demand factors with price movements in cotton seems of the nebular hypothesis and its indo not find ourselves alone in this position, for some of the veteran minds of the cotton trade have been made to look like students in a Chautauqua to look like students in a Chautauqua course in economics.

Matters, have now reached such a pitch that the harassed observer wonders if some new element has nullified fundamental forces, or if the situation contains some unknown and mysterious feature of weakness. This would hardly seem possible, as practically every unfavorable influence has been widely advertised and exploited.

We frankly confess our lack of sympathy with the bearish propaganda now in circulation. On the old crop positions we believe supply and demand factors warrant higher prices. In view of the imperative necessity for a large crop next season, we do not believe the

TREASURY SURPLUS, IT APPEARS, WILL EXCEED ESTIMATE

On March 24 the Treasury had deposits in depositary banks aggregating $291,467,000. These large balances, against which no reserves are carried, tend to ease the money market slightly. The total cash balance in the general fund March 24 totaled $375,266,975. As this is appreciably above ordinary re-

BETHLEHEM STEEL TO PUSL 100 TO PUSH HONOLULU AS A WORLD PORT

HONOLULU, April 1-J. J. Tynan, 1314 vice-president and general manager of 1004 Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, says the company will probably bring to Honolulu its large floating drydock now at Alameda, San Francisco Bay, and that he is negotiating with the Inter-Island Steamship Company of Honolulu for a berth for the drydock.

Mr. Tynan said that the plant will entail an investment of about $3,000,000. He declared that there is a big field in Honolulu and lots of business in sight. The growth of Honolulu as a world port has only fairly begun, be believes.

Mr. Tynan reiterated that the plant which the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation will erect will be equipped to poration will erect will be equipped to make repairs to any ship that may enter port, and also manufacture sugar mill machinery and various other kinds of iron and steel equipment and products.

STEEL CONCERN'S DIVIDENDS PASSED

MONTREAL, April 1—British Empire Steel directors have decided to defer dividend payments by the corporation and subsidiaries owing to the shut-down of the steel plant and coal mines during the first two months of this year pending negotiations for a new wage scale.

Dividends passed include British Empire first: preferred, Dominion Steel Corporation preferred, Dominion Iron & Steel preferred, Dominion Coal, Nova 5334 Scotia Steel & Coal and Eastern Car 52 preferred. No dividend action will be 10034 taken until 1924 operation again becomes favorable.

SUMMER SHOE DEMAND SHOWS

Call for Sport Footwear a Feature -Patent Leather Lines Also Popular

Improvement in the demand for summer footwear is quite marked and prices are now well established. Novelties still predominate, with the result that the eneral demand for shoes is variable and causes much uncertainty among manufacturers. There is a particularly strong call for sport shoes, and it is strong call for sport shoes, and it is reacyted that Endicott-Johnson alone manufacturers. There is a particularly strong call for sport shoes, and it is reported that Endicott-Johnson alone has booked more than 2,000,000 pairs of boys sport shoes since December.

Western factories are operating close to capacity, although the larger plants are having difficulty in keeping produc-

New business in oak sale tannages is Reston deallight but prices are firm. Boston dealers report sales of oak offal few and small, which condition is a fair criterion of what other markets are doing.

Boston, New York and Chicago tan-ners are having a steady, though limited, trade from the sole cutters, but there is trade from the sole cuters, but there is no real activity now, or discernible in the near future. Prices are unchanged. As the Boston market is headquarters for union offal, business there reflects conditions in all other markets. Tanners report a daily demand, but car load lots are exceptional. Choice bellies are moving the state of the price that the lowest listed in the are exceptional. Choice bellies are moving, 18c being the lowest listed in the sales. Shoulders, though slow of sale, are held firmly at 26@29c. Heads seldom move in large lots, the last having been booked at 11c.

Although there is a constant demand for side upper leather in grades of standard tannage it is largely for the cheaper sort and quite unsatisfactory in volume. Under such conditions prices are easy, although quotations show no marked changes. The call for the various grades of buck is kept active by the demand for ladies' spring footwear with good prospects of a fair footwear with good prospects of a farun of business during the next for months.

Boston calfskin tanners are shipping on back orders and booking some new, but it is obvious that the reaction in the raw skin market and the lessening activity in the shoe industry have had their effects on the demand for finished leather. Quotations are unchanged.

LONDON EXCHANGE TRADING SHOWS A MORE ROBUST TONI

LONDON, April 1-The stock market had a more robust tone with sentime cheerful. Home rails were in d on a clearing up of culties. Gilt-edge Issues were buoyan on confirmation of the report that th Government plans to convert the 5 pe cent War Loan bonds.

French loans improved on Paris buying. Mexican loans were in demand on expectation of an early resumption of interest payments. Kaffirs were firm but diamond issues were in supply.

South American rails hardened in spots. The oil list moved within a narrow range but quotations were generally toward higher levels.

Traders in the industrial group were cautious but showed more confidence. Rio Tintos were 31% and Hudson's Bay 6.

PENNSYLVANIA ROAD'S INCOME

Net Earnings Equal $5.16 a Share Compared With $3.24 in 1922—Working Capital Off

The Pennsylvania Railroad.Company in its pamphlet report for the year ended Dec. 31, 1923, shows net income intention of taking the initiative, new business is small, and likely to remain equivalent to $5.16 a share earned on $499,173,400 stock. This compares with The income account for 1923 com pares as follows:

strong call for sport shoes, and it is reported that Endicott-Johnson alone as booked more than 2,000,000 pairs of soys sport shoes since December.

Western factories are operating close to capacity, although the larger plants on a steady basis.

Production of footwear for the first narter of the current year shows a denie in the number of pairs manufactured but an increase in total value over a corresponding period of 1923.

Demand for leather continues very neervative, and prices range firm toong.

New business in oak sale tannages is hit but prices are firm. Boston dealire report sales of oak offal few and all, which condition is a fair criterion what other markets are doing.

Sole Leather Call Steady

Oston, New York and Chicago tans are having a steady, though limited, le from the sole cutters, but there is ated companies borne by Pennsylvania Railroad.

Current assets at Dec. 31, 1923, amounted to $179.262,100 and current liabilities were $98.521.850, leaving a net working capital of $80,740.250, as compared with the net working capital of $89.287,187 on Dec. 31, 1922.

Commenting upon the proposed lease of the Norfolk & Western by the Pennsylvania, President Samuel Rea, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, said: "The purpose of the suggested lease by the Pennsylvania Railroad is not merely to create a new situation and new relations, but to continue and expand along existing co-operative transportation and trade relations; to maintain the corporate identity, efficiency and initiative of the Norfolk & Western's operations; to save duplication of capital and other expenditures, and to give the fulest opportunity for the united development and use of the terminals, yards, shops and equipment and other facilities to an extent that could not be realized by foreing them to become separate competing systems."

BUSINESS SLOWER IN NEW ENGLAND

Boston Bank Says Majority of Industries Affected by March Setback

Reviewing the business situation, the Boston Federal Reserve Bank says in part:

There was a setback in the business situation in March which was fairly widespread, touching the majority of industries in New England. It will be recalled that business activity in February was about on a par with that of January. Even with the decline of the past month, it is near an average level, or what statisticians call "normal."
Commodity prices declined on the average during the first three weeks of March. In the case of basic raw materials, there had also been a decline during the latter part of February. The general wholesale price level of all commodities, including manufactured goods, as well as raw materials, averaged slightly higher in February than in January.

January.

In the third week of March there was a larger excess of wholesale commodities which declined in price, as compared with those which advanced, than in any week since August. Such a measurement is quite a sensitive index of the changes of business conditions.

Department store merchants did not proved a satisfactory volume of business.

Department store merchants did not report a satisfactory volume of business during the first two weeks of March, although their report for February showed a good margin of increase over sales in the corresponding month in 1923. Beginning about the first of March, however, the volume of trade began to suffer, partly because of poor weather conditions.

Manufacturing conditions are far from uniform among the various in-

Manufacturing conditions are far from uniform among the various industries of New England. There were a number of reports received during March from concerns which had been operating on curtailed schedules that they were to increase their output. On the other hand, a number of factories already on part-time schedules reported a further curtailment in their operating schedules. schedules

NO EXPLANATION

TELEPHONE STOCK Officials of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company are at a loss to explain the sudden decline in the stock Monday to 123, off 2½ from Saturday's closing, and comparing with a high for the year of 130%, this latter quotation including the quarterly dividend of

AS TO DECLINE IN

$2.25. There have been no adverse decisions

There have been no adverse decisions as to rates of the operating companies which might tend to explain recent yelling of the stock. Of course, with a f $270,000,000 construction program projected for 1924, some new financing will come along eventually.

One of the New York morning newspapers has embarked upon a campaign of criticism of the proposed rate increases by the New York Telephone Company, which may possibly have disturbed some of the big company's 300,000 shareholders. It is pointed out, however, that the telephone company frequently in the past has received similar attention from newspapers without affecting the position of the stock in any degree.

It is worth noting that on Dec. 31, 1923, American Telephone had cash and temporary cash investments totaling $37,436,000, against which the only nearby maturity was $30,468,400 of 6 per cent notes falling due on Feb. 1. In other words, even after sufficient cash was set aside to pay off the note maturity, there was still $57,000,000 of cash left.

NET INCOME OF AMERICAN GLUE SMALLER IN 1923

with $267,810 in 1922 and $546,110 in the preceding year.

After all charges, depreciation, federal taxes and preferred dividends, final profits amounted to $81,379, equivalent to $1.86 a share on the 43,677 shares of common stock, compared with $2.91 a share in 1922.

On Dec. 31, 1923, current assets amounted to $5,935,006; current liabilities, $1,969,426, leaving working capital of $3,965,580.

In his remarks to stockholders President J. P. Lyman says in part: "During the past year dividends were passed on the common stock after payment of 1 per cent in March. This action was thought desirable because of the generally unsettled conditions prevailing in the glue and realty in leaving and and the state of the generally unsettled conditions prevailing in erally unsettled conditions prevailing in the glue and gelatin industry, and an additional assessment of federal taxes against the parent company and one subsidiary company for 1917.

The amount claimed due from the parent company is still being contested by your company, and in the opinion of our counsel and auditors, will be adjusted this year.

"During the past year the company has refunded $1,000,000 8 per cent debenture debt into fixed debt by the sale of $2,500,000 debenture notes. An unusual charge for the financing of these notes has been absorbed out of 1923 earnings."

Suganuma led through most of the game, except for a brief period soon after the start, when Cutler overtook and led by 33 points, as the result of a run of 86, his highest of the session. But the Japanese replied with 66 in his next turn, and was never headed thereafter. A long series of low scores prolonged the game until the score at the end of the eighteenth inning stood 267 to 240 in favor of the Japanese.

Then the champion increased his string by his high run of 75, and followed with 24, giving him a total of 366. But a series of faulty caroms by each player followed, and 13 more innings were needed before the block was completed. This made the average for the champion 12 4-33, while Cutler's was 9 9-32. SCHOOLEY OPPOSED TO ONE-YEAR RULING

PITTSBURGH. March 31—"Any attempt to force the clubs of the United States Hockey Association to accept the one-year residence rule for players will be bitterly opposed by me," said D. Schooley last night after a short consultation with President W. S. Haddock of the association who has just returned from Toronto, where he consulted with the Canadian hockey authorities relative to the amateur eligibility rule.

"I will not stand for it and I do not think the other club owners will. That is a matter that should be settled by the American and Canadian associations themselves," Schooley added.

AMERICAN INGENUITY HAS WON BREAST-STROKE RECORD

CHICAGO, April 1—American ingenuity has broken a German monopoly on world's records in breast-stroke swimming. When word recently was flashed over the wires that R. D. Skelton of 4the Illinois Athletic Club had broken another world's record, this one for 200-meters in a 75-yard pool, no mention was made of two interesting facts which now emerge. These facts are that Skelton's mark was the first real, international, world record ever made by an American in the breast stroke, and that his performance was due to the development of a discovery made by his coach, William Bachrach, who has been appointed head coach of the American swimming team for the Olympic Games.

Coach Bachrach's invention, by which Skelton was able to beat the German record of 2m. 54 2-5s., is an improvement of a discovery made by the coach Skelton was able to beat the German record of 2m. 54 2-5s., is an improvement of the legs. His new stroke, done in two counts, diminishes the resistence created in preparation for the driving action, it requires less leg-power and delivers much greater lefticincy for the energy expended.

"The old style of leg stroke, writes Bachrach, "brings the legs forward underneath the body, knees bent and feet to trust to the rear tenen separated and thrust to the rear then separated and the swimmer commands.

"Bringing the legs up underneath be body offers so much resistence to the water as almost to stop progress entirely, causing a very broken pace."

The Northern Heavens for April Evenings TOWN AND COUNTRY PROPERTY

By EDWARD SKINNER KING

The ancient Greeks did not immediately connect Hesperus, as they called the planet setting as an evening star after the sun, with equally bright Phosphorus which glowed in the morning sky a few weeks later. It is said that Pythagoras was the first to identify the two as apparitions of the same celestial body. Let us trace briefly the changing aspects of this beautiful planet. Circling the sun at a distance of 67,000,000 miles and with a velocity pace in the sky, it appeared higher and higher from night to night, and now it is about 45 degrees from the sun t and sets three hours later. On April 22 it attains its greatest clongation eastward from the sun. Then the planet will seem to turn backward, and on July 1 will pass on the nearer fore the dawn. Then it will slip far-ther and farther away from us until lileo, and the fact was a severe blow to the Ptolemaic system, which held that Venus was never as far away as the sun, and never could show more than the quarter phase. It is fortunate for astronomers that Venus can be seen beyond the sun, for they use it as a reflector to study the radiations proceeding from the farther side of our luminary.

Venus is a very good reflector. That venus is a very good reflector to sudy the radiations proceeding from the farther side of our luminary.

Venus is a very good reflector. That venus can be observed all over the United States, but only by those possessing the venus is a very good reflector. That venus is a very good reflector. planet. Circling the sun at a distance of 67,000,000 miles and with a velocity of 22 miles a second, Venus completes its course around the sun in 225 days. Its movements as seen by us are complicated by the motion of the earth traveling in a path more distant from the sun. Last September, Venus was 160,000,000 miles away, on the farther side of the sun, where it could not be seen. Slowly it forged to the eastside of the sun, where it could not be seen. Slowly it forged to the eastward and keen eyes began to see it glow near the western horizon in the early evening twilight. Quickening its color, Mars is not very bright near but the constellation of the constellatio color. Mars is not very bright now but in August when it approaches near to the earth it will outshine Juniter. Nentune is in the evening sky, but similar to Uranus it needs a telescope for observation.

NORTHERN | HORIZON Octivate of the second

The April Evening Sky for the Northern Hemisphere

The map is plotted for about the latitude of New York City, but will answer for locations much further north or south. When held face downward, directly overhead, with the "Southern Horizon" toward the south, it shows the constellations as they will appear on April 7 at 11 p. m., April 22 at 10 p. m., May 7 at 9 p. m., and May 22 at 8 p. m., in local mean time. The boundary presents the horizon, the center the zenith. For convenient use, hold the map with the part of the boundary down corresponding to the direction one faces. The lower portion of the map thus held shows the stars in that part of the sky according to their relative heights above the horizon.

Literature by Fiat - From Without and From Within

Dr. Johnson's most contemptuous judgments was his stricture on Thomas Gray to the effect that "he had a notion not very peculiar that he could not write but at certain times, or at happy moments; a fantastick foppery, to which my kindness pression. And because he would not because or at happy moments; a fan-k foppery, to which my kindness for a man of learning and of virtue wishes him to have been superior."

Such an accusation is, of course, an indictment not of Gray but of the burly old Doctor himself. We can partly condone his boorish lack of sympathy on the ground of his own bitter experience in Grub Street, his own by the own butter experience in Grub Street, his own by the own by own struggle as a slave of hack orders

Christ Jesus was continually bringing home the same valuable lesson in Science we are learning that the real lowers to be watchful and active in this lesson very forcefully in his parathe servants who received five talents and two talents, respectively, made good use of them, and that by the time their lord returned they had doubled their talents. The servant who had received one talent neglected to use it; and he was punished accordingly. It was not because it was so little, but because he had neglected to use diligently what he had, that he was rebuked. If he had used it, he might have gained eventually as much as the others, because "God is no respecter of persons;" and as James says, God "giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not."

God has given to each one of His children precious gifts, which con-tribute to the enjoyment of universal harmony. These gifts may vary in their character, as humanly seen, but everyone without exception enjoys this endowment of divine Love. We are continually seeing individuals who have shown an aptitude in a particular line gradually or quickly progress to fuller activity and usefulness along it. THE recent debate in the British House of Commons on the Singapore naval base gave Mr. Ramsay MacDonald a good opportunity for expounding his policy in international affairs. Mr. MacDonald has always been a pacifist in the moderate interpretation of that word. He voted against Britain's entry into the Great War, and during the whole of it he was an opponent of war psychology. This pacifist past makes it all the more interesting that after some two months' experience as head of the British Government he has now defined what are his practical ideas for the promotion of world peace.

Mr. MacDonald's Foreign Policy

The issue under discussion was whether the Government should proceed with the construction of a new and enlarged naval base at Singapore. There is already a cruiser base there. The question was whether there should now be built a battleship base as well. The preceding Government had decided in favor of the scheme, and the dominions had supported it. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald made it clear that there was no international objection to the proposal. Notwithstanding this, however, and despite the protests of Australia and New Zealand, his Government decided to proceed no further with

The grounds on which Mr. MacDonald justified this decision, however, were not abstract pacifist grounds, as some had expected. He made it perfectly clear that if his alternative policy failed there was nothing left but to proceed with the fortification of Singapore to the limit. But while Mr. MacDonald recognized that in the last resort armaments were necessary, he did not believe that progress toward world peace could be made by a policy of armaments alone. As he said, "We stand for a policy of international co-operation through a strengthened and enlarged League of Nations, the settlement of disputes by conciliation and arbitration, and the creation of conditions which will make a comprehensive scheme of limita-tion of armaments possible." That was, in his judgment, the only real road of progress.

Mr. MacDonald thought that if the British Government were to lay down such a new base at the very moment when it was trying to create a new atmosphere of confidence and co-operation in international affairs it would inevitably diminish, if not destroy, all chance of success for its policy. There was, he thought, a short time in which the country could be absolutely sure that no new war would overtake it, and he; therefore, proposed to take advantage of that period to show the utmost "energy in pursuing other methods of security," having for their aim international disarmament and good will, while keeping its existing moderate standard of armaments up to full efficiency, but doing nothing to diminish the chances of international action by launching new schemes of doubtful necessity. If its policy of international conciliation failed, then he admitted the whole position would have to be considered afresh.

It is earnestly to be hoped that Mr. Ramsav Mac-Donald's hopes will be realized, and that as a result of this gesture of confidence progress will be made in the next few years in establishing that international confidence and co-operation which alone can make possible an all-round agreement for the limitation of armaments, by land, air, and sea. International understanding is the only alternative to armaments; indeed, armaments are the inevitable result of the absence of international understanding, and, as all history shows, armaments invariably end in war. In the long run it is understanding or war.

Mr. MacDonald's policy is curiously reminiscent of that adopted by the Liberal Government when it came into power in England in 1906. The competition of armaments between Germany and her neighbors had just set in. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannermann was determined, if possible, to end that competition by a general agreement. He accordingly canceled the battleship building program of his predecessors, in order to prove the sincerity of his intentions. The negotiations, however, were fruitless, and two years later the German Government introduced a new program for a navy larger than any then in existence, and that furious competition began which only ended in the explosion of the Great War. Fortunately, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald is not confronted with any such menace at the moment. There is no equivalent of imperial Germany in the world. But it is none the less true that the nations must either begin to move toward a general understanding or they will be estranged by suspicion and misunderstanding. They cannot stand still and secure peace in universal isolation.

Speaking from his actual experience as chairman of the War Industries Board, which functioned acceptably

Mr. Baruch Favors a National Levy

following its creation as an emergency agency after the United States entered the World War, Bernard M. Baruch recently argued in support of legislation which would empower the President to mobilize the wealth and industries of the country in time of threatened war. His statements were made to the Military Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives of Congress, before which he appeared in response to an invitation. His approval was given to the plan consistently urged by The Christian Science Monitor "to take the profits out of war."

It is the opinion of the former chairman of the War Industries Board that had that organization been created earlier, there would not have been the rise in prices and the economic changes that attended the war and followed in its wake. From an economic as well as from a moral standpoint, he believes it is the duty of the Government to control not only the enlistment and drafting of man power in time of a national emergency, but the drafting of wealth and the fixing of fair commodity prices. "Those acting for the President in time of danger," he said, "would at once proceed to the mobilization of men, money, materials and foods. They would fix all prices, including prices for labor. They would regulate

It is a hopeful indication of progress that there is coming to be a clearer realization of the practicability of assuring, in case of any future war emergency, the fullest participation by wealth, as well as man power, in the national defense. Shorn of its abnormal profits in time of war, wealth would combine with industry and society in seeking by every just means the prevention of armed conflict. Taking the profit out of war takes at the same time the war incentive from those who grow rich while others suffer. Mr. Baruch is no mere theorist. If he ever had any illusions regarding war and its economic inequalities, he rid himself of these while serving at Washington. It may be said of war that familiarity with it breeds contempt for it as an institution. The men and women who have seen most of war have the greatest abhorrence for it. Wealth, compelled to fight on the side of a patriotic civilian and military army of defense, would, even before the first engagement, share the common feeling against war in any form.

IT, PERHAPS, was too much to expect that before final consideration and passage of the Swing-Johnson bill, now pending in the United States Congress, by the terms of which it is proposed to nationalize and protect for the uses of the people in perpetuity the waters to be impounded in the great Boulder Dam irrigation project, no friction or opposition should be aroused. There has been a persistent effort, almost from the day the plan was first announced, to make possible the monopolization of the waters of the lower Colorado River by ambitious private interests. This could be accomplished only by creating discord and jealousy among the seven states whose responsible representatives had joined in drafting an agreement or treaty providing for the development of the project along lines satisfactory to all. Unless the ratification of this treaty by the several states could be prevented, the proponents of the private ownership plan were without hope.

Now, by the interposition of Governor Hunt of Arizona, definite form has been given to complaint, ostensibly in behalf of that State, that undue and selfish influence is being exerted by the Secretary of the Interior, a resident of Colorado, to insure greater benefits to the people of his State than will be accorded to the people of Arizona. Governor Hunt threatens that the Legislature of Arizona will refuse to ratify the treaty in its present form. On the other hand, Representative Hayden of Governor Hunt's State declares the opposition expressed by the Governor does not represent the attitude of the people of his State as a whole. He is quoted as saying that the agreement should be ratified.

The important fact should not be forgotten that the completion of this immense project will make possible the impounding of a volume of water equal to practically two years of the Colorado River's run-off. The proposed impounding reservoir and the dam itself are many times larger than the project at Assuan, on the River Nile. One object sought is to make productive more than 2,000,000 acres of desert land. But there is coupled with this the equally important undertaking to protect from floods the immense areas of the Imperial Valley, in California. In that valley there now reside upward of 75,000 prosperous people, with potential assets estimated as being worth almost a billion dollars. The only way in which private interests can gain control of the project, with its tempting possibilities as a producer of hydroelectric power, is by fomenting and encouraging disagreement over the pending Swing-Johnson bill and the compact tentatively entered into by the several states affected. That every possible effort is being made to create this confusion and discord is plain enough. There is no apparent disposition on the part of the other states to deprive the State of Arizona of its rightful benefits. At least there has been no such manifestation so far as the public knows. An opportunity will be given to Governor Hunt to make a full disclosure before he committee which is considering the pending bill. If he has a real grievance, it should be considered on its merits. But his complaint should not afford an opportunity for those who are opposing the final passage of the measure to strengthen their case, if by that means private monopolization of the project is to be encouraged or aided.

AGAIN Senator William E. Borah of Idaho comes forward with a world conference plan. The proposal

Senator

Borah's

Conference

is in the form of a resolution presented in the United States Senate, its general language conforming to that of the resolution offered to the last Congress, as well as to that adopted preceding the calling of the Conference for the Limitation of Armament by President Harding. It requests the President "to invite such governments as he may deem necessary" to send delegates to a conference which shall address itself to the task of restoring industrial peace. as well as to the question of further limiting armament, both on land and sea.

Senator Borah expresses the conviction that it is of the greatest importance that the markets of Europe be restored to the American farmer. Relief from present industrial conditions is impossible, he says, until Europe is in a position to buy. Quite logically the Senator hopes to effect this readjustment of trade, which he declares to be intimately associated with the subject of armament, through the medium of an interchange of views in a conference in which the powers concerned would have representation. It is his belief that Europe will not disarm until conditions approximating those which obtained before the war are restored, or until former levels are approached. It does not seem an extravagant assumption that any effort to better the industrial and economic status of American farmers will fail, in the end, unless steps are taken in the meantime for the restoration of foreign markets for the products which they offer for sale. Temporary relief can undoubtedly be provided, but as Senator Borah insists, "If we are going to help agriculture we must help agriculture; quack remedies may assuage the pain for a time, but real remedies are needed now."

Millions of people would gladly buy the products of American farms if they could. It is not that there is no need of the food which the producers find it hard to dispose of at a fair price. The need does exist, and it will exist until those who are now unable to buy are made in a measure economically independent. But Europe's economic problem must be solved simultaneously with its political problem, according to Senator Borah. Europe will not disarm, he insists, until her problems of an economic nature are adjusted. There the impasse which has existed so long is again reached. The old problem presents itself, not in hideous guise to alarm the wary, but in concrete and simple form, apparently easy of solution. Those who retreat in horror at the mention of leagues or associations of nations may considerately and hopefully regard a proposal that by informal and friendly conferences the world's perplexing problems be anticably discussed and finally solved.

In TAKING a positive stand that crime and sensationalism have no place in the country press, Mrs. Marie for

Clean News

Weekes, president of the Nebraska Press Association and editor of the Press, a weekly newspaper published in Norfolk, Neb., showed that, in at least one important respect, she is entitled to a position in the vanguard of American newspaper editors. And her influence has already extended beyond the confines of her own paper, for at the midwinter meeting of the press association at Grand Island, Neb., a code of ethics was adopted establishing the fundamental written law which is to guide Nebraska newspapers in their work. The basis of this code, Mrs. Weekes has explained, is the fact that the members of the association realize that public confidence, built on a reputation for truth, fairness and wholesomeness, is their best asset.

There is no doubt that Mrs. Weekes is perfectly right about the relationship which, she claims, exists between the readers of a newspaper and its editors, namely, that the public is the "boss." Unfortunately, however, as she also intimates, this "boss" is often only too easy in the exercising of its sovereignty and too lax in asserting its authority. What then is to be done, unless some of the editors unasked take it upon themselves to do what they must instinctively know the public really wants them to do, serve the news truthfully and interpret it intelligently? It is true that there is noticeable a certain indifference, and a terrible ignorance, on the part of the great majority of the American public, but this serves as no reason why the editor should not do his best to arouse an enthusiasm in his readers for a true presentation of important facts and to help to clear away the mists of their ignorance.

The power for good or evil which newspapers exercise can hardly be overestimated. It is indisputable that a species of mass mesmerism is employed, possibly unconsciously, by many periodicals in the furtherance of their policies. And few can deny either that the influence which the constant repetition of crime details and similar considerations plays on the moral consciousness of, especially, the growing populace constitutes a menace which it is difficult to exaggerate. Yet, after all, it should not be so impractical a problem to establish a cleaner moral code in newspapers generally, because, at the last analysis, the primary purpose of a periodical is the truthful statement of facts, with a judicious interpretation thereof. As soon, therefore, as the limits defined by these considerations are overstepped, the newspaper is outside its proper field of usefulness. When newspapers cease to be propaganda instruments for any but the highest right, there will be little need for eliminating the scandal and crime news, because it will be eliminated automatically

Editorial Notes

IN PLACING violators of the Volstead Act in the same category with members of the I. W. W. who refuse to obev laws they dislike, Col. William Hayward, United States attorney for the Southern District of New York, did not step outside of any justifiable limit of indictment. "I know people," he told the Young Folks' League of Congregation Ohab Zedek at the Hotel Ansonia, "who are protecting criminals, who are giving criminals immunity, who are sheltering and rewarding criminals, and who are hiring criminals to commit forgery, robbery, bribery, and perjury. And for what reason? Just to get something to drink." He added that, in his opinion, opposition to the prohibition law is merely another instance of American disregard for laws that are not taken seriously. Maybe it is, but if so, then the sooner ways and means are devised whereby this law will be taken seriously, the better for all parties concerned.

+ + + "WE FOUND the well because thy heart is white; on this road those whose heart is not white do not find the well." These words, said M. Bruneau de Laborie, who has recently returned to Paris after a trip across the Libyan desert, were uttered by the two guides who helped him over a route which had never before been traversed by a white man. In all his contacts with natives he carried himself with complete confidence, showing them that he intended no harm and expected none in return. There is a depth of meaning that can be given to the statement of the guides which every individual can apply to himself or herself. Faith in one's fellow man and a "white heart" will go a long way toward finding a well in the desert for each one.

Wilberforce, the Emancipator

ON THE first of August, 1834, all slaves in the British Empire were to become free. On the last night of slavery, the Negroes in the West Indian Islands went up to the hill-tops to watch for the sun to rise, bringing them freedom as its first rays struck the waters. But far away in the forests of Central Africa, in the heart of darkness yet unexplored, none understood or regarded the day. Yet it was that continent whose future was most deeply affected. Before its exploitation by Europe had well begun, it had been decided by the most powerful of its future masters that slavery was not to be the relation of the black man to the white." In these words Mr. G. M. Trevelyan sums up the fruits of nearly forty years of unceasing work by the hero of Mr. Coupland's book. (Wilberforce: A Narrative, by R. Coupland, Oxford University Press.)

William Wilberforce, according to ordinary standards, was an exceptionally fortunate young man. He inherited wealth, position, an amiable disposition, undoubted public talent, and he was the friend and intimate of Pitt the younger, and most of the notables of his time. He entered the House of Commons in 1780 and was an immediate success alike in Parliament and society. Boswell, indeed, describes his impressions of his ability as a speaker in these terms: "I saw," he said, what seemed a mere shrimp mount upon the table; but, as I listened, he grew, and grew, until the shrimp became a whale." It was evident that he had before him the chance of a great political career.

But in 1784 he came under the influence of the Wesleyan revival. He was "converted" from a conventional to a living Christian faith, and turned from the company of Mrs. Siddons and worldly duchesses to that of the Clapham sect and Hannah More. For a time he was uncertain whether he ought not to leave politics, with its corruption, and ambitions, and intrigues. But Pitt, though little touched by Christianity himself, persuaded him that if Christianity was to be useful it must be practical, and urged him to devote his talents to the great task of securing the abolition of the trade in slaves. Wilberforce felt this to be a definite "call," and in 1789 put himself at the head of the abolitionist movement.

It is difficult for people today to understand how our forbears could have tolerated the iniquity of the slave trade. The slave ships, manned by an exceptionally brutal type of man, used to hover off the coasts of Africa, while their agents, usually native chiefs, used to raid for young men and women far into the interior. But the destruction of tribal life and the horrors of the slave raids were the lesser half of the evil. Once aboard the ship the wretched captives were crammed together on shelves until they had not space to move, and then they had to sail through the tropical horrors of the Middle

It was Wilberforce's first task to endeavor to obtain from Parliament an act forbidding the slave trade to British vessels and British citizens. But despite the steady support of Pitt, then Prime Minister, of Charles James Fox, and of Burke, it was not until 1806 that success was won. He had first to arouse the conscience of the country. Then he had to overcome the opposition of the vested interests, who declared that abolition would impel the slaves to murder and destruction on the plantations, would ruin British commerce, and would be futile, because the trade would still be carried on by others powers. Then came the French Revolution, and the Napoleonic wars to distract and absorb the public mind with other things. But Wilberforce never relented in his campaign. He adopted no sensational or fanatical methods. Patiently, persistently, as occasion offered, he exposed the iniquities of the trade, answered the propaganda of his opponents, and demanded of Parliament that it should do its duty. And in the end, after endless disappointments, he carried his bill by the enormous majority of 283 votes to 16.

But Wilberforce soon found that his work was only half done. The United States had abolished the American slave trade also in 1806. But the European maritime powers had not. And so Wilberforce turned his attention to securing international co-operation for abolition and to insisting that his own Government should rigidly enforce the laws that Parliament had made. But success in the international sphere was more difficult. After many years a general convention was signed. But it proved largely ineffective because the British Navy alone seriously tried to suppress the trade.

At length Wilberforce and his friends made up their minds that the only thing left to do was to strike at the fundamental root of the evil, and to press for the total abolition of slavery everywhere under the Union Jack. So in 1823 the whole about litionist campaign was started again. By this time Wilberforce was an old man. He gradually transferred responsibility to other and younger hands. But he lived to see the complete triumph of his cause. On July 25, 1833, the crucial vote was passed. "I thank God," he exclaimed on hearing the news, that I should have lived to witness a day when England is willing to give £20,000,000 for the abolition of slavery. Forty-eight hours later he had passed away.

Professor Coupland calls his book "a narrative." It is a true description. It is more than a biography. It is a fresh and vivid account of a great phase of English, indeed, of world history, of which Wilberforce and the abolition of the slave trade was the center. It gives a graphic account of the Parliamentary life and characters of the time. It describes the gradual transition in the attitude of Great Britain in its dealings with backward peoples, from the commercial to the trustee

But the center is always Wilberforce himself. Wilberforce was not a great man as the world reckons greatness. He had not the outstanding powers or the gifts of the hero. He was too gentle, too sympathetic, too humane for the first places in the rough and tumble of public life. His real power was his purity, his goodness, his honesty, his unfaltering fidelity to the right as he saw it. As a result it was the ideas for which he stood, rather than the man himself, that gradually conquered the public opinion of his day.

The liberation of the slaves, however, was not his only accomplishment. His example and his character had an immense effect in purifying the grossness and brutality which were the mark of his times, and in preparing the way for the nobler standards of the Victorian age. There was nothing, indeed, that Wilberforce had more at heart than the conversion of England from a "nominal" to a practical Christianity. In 1797, in the midst of his campaign against the slave trade, he published an appeal to the Nation, exposing selfishness as the 'moral distemper of political communities" and pleading for Christianity as the one guide alike in public and private life. From the date of his conversion religion was the governing motive of Wilberforce's life, which was a splendid example of what wonderful good can be accomplished for mankind by the steadfast application of Christianity in public affairs.
